Ration Boards Take Over ODT Gasoline Work

Arrangements under which local OPA boards will take over from the Office of Defense Transportation issuance of temporary and emergency gasoline ration cards for commercial vehicles, starting Monday, Oct. 16, have been completed.

Under the new procedure, applications by bus, truck, taxi, rental car operators for temporary rations will be made to local OPA boards rather than to the ODT district office. These rations will be issued by local boards and any appeals from their decisions will be handled by OPA. Thus OPA will have complete authority over the issuance of such additional rations. Paul Barksdale, ODT, OPA district ration chief, said.

This change is expected to improve service to the operators, since in the eight Southern California counties they will have available 130 local OPA boards as compared with the ODT district office.

ODT, as in the past, will handle applications for certificates of war necessity or for permanent changes in certificate allotments. County farm transportation committees, organized under the Department of Agriculture, will continue to make recommendations on temporary gas allotments for farmers trucks, but will refer such applications to local OPA boards for action, instead of to ODT district offices.

WPB to Ease Small Homes Regulations

The War Production Board has decided to lift its restrictions on the design and materials used in residential building now permitted, and soon may follow up by raising the $6,000 price limitation on new dwellings to $7,500.

The dropping of design standards, requested by the National Housing Agency, will permit a return to prewar quality homes, although still of small size. The N.H.A. hopes this to stimulate home construction, now slowed to a near-standstill by the tendency of builders and prospective buyers to gamble on an early German collapse and to "wait for something better."

Greater comfort and individuality are about all that the new relaxation, not yet officially announced, will permit. Present rules limit a one-bedroom, one-story house to 650 square feet of floor area, and a two-bedroom house to 800 feet. Such limitations would be dropped, along with the requirement that the kitchen and bathroom must be back to back—or, in a two-story house, one above the other—to save plumbing.

By abandoning these standards builders could use for a one-room dwelling the materials which previously could only have gone into a three-room house, although the over-all limitation of $6,000 still holds at this moment.

Present limitations on the size of heating units similarly would be dropped.

The two-year-old building standards have become a handicap to construction activity and to the provision of needed new houses for war workers, N.H.A. officials have said.

Cigaret Shortage Will Ease Soon, Says Government

Easing of the current cigarette shortage was predicted today in a statement by L. M. Kearns, chief food products division, Office of Price Administration.

Kearns explained that it has been reported that the growers labor shortage has eased off, making available additional tobacco for cigarette manufacturing purposes and that the present shortage will become less acute in the near future.

"The local situation is being aggravated by professional shoppers and hoarders who go from store to store buying cigarettes without consideration for other smokers," Kearns said. "We have received other reports that clerks in some retail establishments take home several cartons of cigarettes which they sell to their friends at exorbitant prices, thus breaking the law and depriving regular customers of an opportunity to buy."

Kearns also sounded a warning that wholesalers who tie-in sale of cigarettes with candy, pipes, Mexican chewing gum and other commodities in order to sell cigarettes are doing so in violation of regulations and will be so treated by the OPA enforcement section.

Veterans Here Support No. 1 On Fall Ballot

Proposition No. 1 on the General Election ballot of Nov. 7, 1944, provides for a $30,000,000 bond issue which will make available funds for the purchase of homes and farms for veterans of World War II who enter the service from the state of California.

This will be a continuance of the beneficial program which was inaugurated in 1922 for California veterans of World War I. "This activity is recognized as being one of, if not the finest of rehabilitation and Americanization programs existent in the world today," Tom Babbitt, adjutant, Bert S. Crossland Post No. 120, said.

"Stated briefly, it is based upon the wholesome and progressive philosophy that it is infinitely better for America to have an American family living in its own home rather than the same family living in a house owned by the landlord.

"The 22-year record of the Veterans' Welfare Board is one of unusual, constructive accomplishment, resulting in the purchase for California veterans of more than 20,000 homes acquired without a taint of charity and further, and perhaps more important, without one cent of cost to California taxpayers.

"A total of $80,000,000 has already been voted by the people of the state of California resulting in the acquisition of homes and farms of a value exceeding $80,000,000. Not one cent of interest or principal on Veterans' Welfare Bonds has been a single day delinquent and there has accumulated a net surplus in excess of $8,000,000.

"Certainly there is no finer way for the citizens of California to contribute to the rehabilitation and Americanization of the returning veterans of World War II than to cast a 'Yes' vote on Proposition No. 1."

Rayon Weaving Plant Opening At Beach City

Establishment within the next few months of a rayon piece-goods weaving plant at Hermosa Beach by Schwarzenbach Huber Co., one of the world's oldest silk manufacturing enterprises, was announced recently by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce Industrial Department.

Faith in an expanding western textile production, officials of the company said, prompted them to make the move, which involved purchase of the Golden State Mills site of four acres and buildings at 17th and Railroad aves. in the beach city.

The purchase, which brings Southern California the first industrial venture devoted to this type of textile production in the western states, was consummated by three officials of the company, Ernest G. Glaesel, president, and Alfred Schwarzenbach, chairman of the board, both of New York, and Walter C. Reilly, sales representative for California and adjacent states, Los Angeles.

Schwarzenbach is a member of the fourth generation of the family which founded the company in 1829 in Thalwil, Switzerland.

Succeeding moves brought the company in 1881 to Union City, N. J., then West Hoboken. Since that year, the firm has operated mills in Pennsylvania and Virginia industrial centers, and has sold its products throughout the United States and in all parts of the world.

Weaving of piece goods for sale to garment manufacturers of the western states, it was said, will be undertaken at the Hermosa Beach plant which has stood idle since its former ownership discontinued silk production some time ago.

Chamber of commerce spokesmen pointed out that the move of Schwarzenbach Huber to Southern California may be the first step in establishment of a vast rayon industry for this region. Virtually all of this type of production heretofore has been confined to eastern states.

Since Pearl Harbor, a large part of Schwarzenbach Huber Company's production has been diverted from the civilian market to war work. The firm is producing, in its eastern factories, parachute cloth, flare cloth, powder bag cloth and other textile products extensively used by the armed forces.

FIREPROOF LUMBER DUE AFTER WAR

Use of treated lumber in construction of homes and farm buildings can materially reduce fire hazards in rural areas, it was asserted by J. F. Lintleum, president of the American Lumber and Treating Company in connection with a series of safety recommendations made public by the National Fire Protection Association.

Pointing out that rural fires cause a yearly loss of 3,500 lives and $100,000,000 in property, Lintleum said the fire association's recommendation that modern techniques be used to fireproof otherwise inflammable materials is already being met by the treated lumber industry of the United States.

The treated lumber industry, Lintleum said, has been producing millions of feet of timber which has been made fire resistant by pressure impregnation with chemical salts known as Minalth, a compound so effective that the processed wood will withstand open flames for many minutes.

In voicing assurances that such lumber will be available for all types of civilian and domestic construction after the war, Lintleum said that treated lumber also capable of resisting decay and termites likewise will be ready for post-war construction, combining the elements of safety, durability and permanence with the many other desirable characteristics of wood.
